

Active Learning Projects – a useful guide

National u3a's Research and Shared Learning group have produced a useful guide to planning and carrying out any kind of active learning project, whether it be working with a university department, partnering with local history societies, arts groups, libraries or museums, or a project which arises directly from members' interests. All are valid and valued. This guide also covers ethical considerations and other aspects of research. You can find it at <https://www.u3a.org.uk/learning/u3a-research>

And don't forget your local Sheffield Shared learning and Research group is always happy to help develop and implement your ideas for active learning
